DETAILED ACTION

This Office Action is in response to amendments and remarks filed March 22, 2004. Claims 21, 23-26, 28-36 and 55 are currently pending.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 21, 23-26, 28-32, 35 and 55 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Crowell et al. (U.S. Patent 5,804,832).

Regarding claims 21, 23-26, 28-32, 35 and 55, Crowell et al. disclose (see Figures 4 and 5) a photoelectric conversion device, comprising: a conductive member (38, see also column 6, lines 35-45), a plurality of substrates (24) each having a plurality of photoelectric conversion elements (26), the plurality of substrates being arranged adjacent in a plane, and a wavelength converting member (phosphor 74) disposed between the photoelectric conversion elements and the conductive member, wherein the (see column 6, lines 35-45) the conductive member is a metal (aluminum) and is grounded. A control circuit and apparatus body is inherent in the apparatus. In addition, Crowell et al. disclose (see Figure 5) a spaced formed between the substrate and the conductive member, and an area of the conductive member overlaps the photoelectric conversion elements. Crowell et al. also disclose (see Figures 5 and 7) the conductive member is sealed and extends over the outer edges of the substrates as claimed.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 33, 34 and 36 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Crowell et al.

Regarding claim 36, Crowell et al. disclose the claimed invention as set forth above. Crowell et al. do not specifically disclose the thickness of the metal layer. However, choosing a desired thickness of a layer is design choice and would require only routine skill in the art. It would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide a metal layer having a thickness of 100 microns or less in the apparatus of Crowell et al. to reduce the amount of metal used and reduce the costs associated with fabrication.

Regarding claims 33 and 34, Crowell et al. disclose the claimed invention as set forth above. Crowell et al. also disclose (see Figure 7) an adhesive used to seal the device. Crowell et al. do not specifically disclose a resin provided in the space as claimed. However, resins and adhesives are notoriously well known. It would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide a resin in the device of Crowell et al. to provide further protection for the device as desired.

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments filed March 22, 2004 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant asserts that Crowell et al. do not disclose "the conductive member be disposed of on a wavelength converting member." However, such language is not found in the claims. Thus, Applicant's remarks are not persuasive and this rejection is proper.

Conclusion

6. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
